

1. The Call I Never Made

Genre: Drama

Age Range: 16-35

Length: 1 Minute

Emotional Themes: Regret, Loss, Reflection

Scene Description

Years after a falling-out with a loved one, a young adult discovers they still have the person's phone number saved. They reflect on the conversation they never had.

Monologue

I still have his number. Funny, right? The phone has changed three times. The house is gone. Half the city looks different now. But the number is still there. And every few months I scroll past it and think... "Maybe today." Maybe today I'll call and say what I should have said years ago. That I was angry. That I was stubborn. That I thought there would always be more time. But there wasn't.

The last conversation we had wasn't even important. I can't remember what we argued about. I only remember hanging up. I only remember thinking I'd call back tomorrow. Tomorrow became next week. Next week became next year. And now...

Now all I have is a number I'll never dial.
